

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A dump truck body including a receptacle defined by a floor and, extending from the floor, first and second side walls on opposite sides of the floor, 5 and a front wall extending between the side walls, wherein the first and second side walls have a first longitudinal edge distal from the floor and a second longitudinal edge proximal to the floor. The dump truck body further includes at least one first sloped panel having a first longitudinal edge and a second longitudinal edge, wherein the first longitudinal edge of the at least one first sloped panel is pivotally connected 10 at or adjacent the first longitudinal edge of the first side wall for pivotal movement between a raised position adjacent the first side wall and a lowered position extending angularly between the first side wall and the floor.